I came to accept them as her outer-voice. More of a vocal habit than a sign of ignorance. Her insecurity of the use of her gifts felt real. The male characters suited their heroines' quite well. strike 2. after Claire steals War's sword. nope. he just gave her a head cold. lol. ummmm. several times. I loved all the characters and the plot line. This will be a book I will reread many times over. It had me spellbound from page one. This collaboration by Cynthia St. The authors' voices blend well. In addition there is the over-arching conflict. With a capital A. Moira Claire and Aerin all hear the call. All four meet their respective Horseman of the Apocalypse. Her spell had broken another. A banishing spell as old as she was. There's a saying about too many cooks spoiling the pot. Aubin and Kerrigan Byrne. Each has their own personality. At first Moira's bumpkin-isms annoyed me. I absolutely loved that about this book. The climax of the book is vividly written. I'm almost certain a sequel must be in the works. Couldn't put it down. Yup the reader is the winner. Yet she always felt like something was missing.
